Sheep in the Big City

Sheep On The Run!

Cartoon Network's latest show, Sheep in the Big City, is now showing every Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 19.00 and weekends at 8.30. To celebrate the show's launch and Sheep's success at hiding out in the city with the army hot on his tail, here's the lowdown and the chance to win some great prizes!

SHEEP

Hunted by the military, who want to use him in a powerful ray gun, Sheep escapes his life of easy-living country-life to hide out in the city. He manages to rent a flat, get a job and fall in love with a sexy little poodle by the name of Swanky.

THE CREATOR

Mo Willems provides the voice of the Angry Scientist and is the brains behind the show, acting as writer and director. He is also the creator of the Off-Beats and Sesame Street's Suzie Kabloozie cartoons and has won 3 Emmy awards as a writer on Sesame Street.

THE STORY SO FAR...

It's not easy living as a sheep in the city. Life's hard and people are out to fleece you. Despite his best efforts to establish a normal, urban lifestyle, his sheepish character and the fact that he's a farm animal mean trouble's never far away!

Stop Press! Is your school taking part in Stamp Out Smoking Day on June 15? Ask your teacher to log onto www.roycastle.org/kats/action.htm for details and you could win a fantastic party for your whole school!
